

DEMOCRATS

Applaud Action of Women Democrats Who Were Not Fooled
By Bingham.

Men Democrats Not Courageous Enough to Denounce His Ultimatum.

Mayor Smith Holds Record of Highest Tax Rate in City's History.

LOCAL CROOKS MAKE MERRY.

That the women in politics are more astute than the men is proven by the action of the gathering of the Democratic women in the Seelbach Hotel last Saturday. Judge Robert W. Bingham, owner of the Courier-Journal and Times, was an invited guest and the ladies expected that as the proprietor of supposedly Democratic papers he would deliver some good old Democratic doctrine and pledge his support to the ladies in helping to deliver the year. But he did nothing of the kind, delivering a talk very much along independent lines, and said it was the duty of everyone to support a "good Republican" if he or she thought the Republican was the best man for the office. This is the sentiment expressed by all reformers and renegade Democrats when they are preparing to knife the ticket—in other words it is a preface to running out or holding the ticket. Did the ladies fall for this buncombe? They did not. And the Courier-Journal and Times owner was jumped on with both feet by the good Democratic women present, one lady, Miss Emily Hunt, characterizing Bingham's talk as "poison" and said that there was never so good a Republican that his equal could not be found in the Democratic ranks. Other women present denounced the speech, and the majority present registered their disapproval of the treasonable Democracy as expressed by the Courier-Journal and Times owner.

Now here is where the women Democrats demonstrated that they are smarter and more astute than their brother Democrats. In the campaign of 1919 some of the gentlemen interested in reorganizing the Democratic party conceived the idea of inviting Judge Bingham to a friendly gathering of Democrats in the Tyler Hotel, thinking that their personal invitation and friendliness would bring the Courier-Journal and Times owner in line for the Democratic State and county tickets. The big crowd assembled gave the Judge an ovation when he rose to make his little address, and all were predicting that he, being flattered by his reception, would pledge his support and the fighting support of his papers. But he did nothing of the kind and in a cool, deliberate manner told the Democrats that "the Democratic party would win when it deserved to win." The rest is history. The talk was a prelude to his bolting the ticket, and he left the ticket, his papers harassing the Democratic campaign committees and doing everything possible to aid Tobe Hertz and his candidate Morrow. When Bingham finished his bolting address at the Tyler none of the men present called his hand, instead they all meekly turned the other cheek for him to smite. So now it comes as pleasant tidings that the women Democrats were not awed or fooled by the Judge and they served notice on him immediately that they will construe his actions as deliberate bolting and to add to his discomfort they paid their respects in strong terms to Bingham's boon companion—Tobe Hertz. The action of the women should prove as an incentive to the men and they should take courage and let the Courier-Journal and Times owner know that if he concludes to "bushwhack" or knife the Democratic ticket, they will carry the fight right back to him. It is the duty of the Democratic men and women to get together and select a ticket that all can support, a ticket of capable and strong nominees, and then defy Bingham to attempt to aid underhandedly the Republican machine which has given us the worst administration in Louisville's history.

If Christmas gifts are in order at the City Hall this year some one ought to give near Mayor Smith a copy of his speeches in the campaign of 1917, when he denounced the high Democratic tax rate of $1.76, his platform being "Economy and Lower Taxes," and this motto was plastered on the walls and billboards, while in the street cars one was confronted with a picture of "Smithy" and his plea for lower taxes. Today under his "economical" administration we have a tax rate of $1.98, and the mails are deluged with valentines from the Assessor's office, notifying taxpayers that their assessments are giving a big boost, while officially it is stated that all assessments will be 100 per cent. How about some of our civic clubs or good government bodies asking the near Mayor about his promises of 1917 compared with his performances in 1920?

What a beautiful thing to behold is the innocence of Paul Burlingame and Joe Selligman, of the Board of Safety, who profess utter ignorance as to campaign assessments by the Republican machine among the police, firemen and city employees. Len Campion, George Haffendel, John Bourke and John Markwell, the four firemen who resigned the past week because they objected to being human checkers has called the public's attention to the smooth methods of the Republican administration, which professing opposition to claim shaving nevertheless beats the devil around the stump by collecting campaign assessments and Republican organ subscriptions by a slicker method. How surprised Messrs. Burlingame and Selligman were to hear that these firemen had been contributing some of their hard earned wages to the Republican machine, and what a surprise it was for them to hear that one of the firemen, Campion, had to demand his money back from the machine collector, who was hanging right at the door of the Board of Safety office. 'Tis said the Board of Underwriters are objecting to the wreck of what was once a competent fire department, and a little investigation is being made by the Underwriters on their own hook. Why not summon Chief Neuschwander and ask him if he knows anything about a request to see these discharged firemen voted in the recent election.

We're going to offer another suggestion to Chief of Police Lud Petty, who is taking an active interest in Bible class work, and is going to lead the Bible class parade today. For several months the Chief has been addressing Bible classes telling his audiences what wonderful police his Keystoneers were and then the next day some of his hearers would find out that they had been robbed during the night, or either they would read a whole list of robberies in the morning and evening papers, and could only surmise of the many robberies that the press bureau of the Keystone police wouldn't let the public hear of. Last Sunday the Chief lectured the Bible class of the Salem Reform church with "Howdy Ed," who had just returned from a "celebration" at Lexington. The Keystone comedy cops and the near band were present in large numbers and heard their praises sung by the Chief. Following the talk came the news of the following robberies:

S. Weinberg, the tailor at 1204 West Walnut street, has his shop cleaned out. Enterprising burglars cleaned out the home of Frank Schuckman, of 801 South Thirtieth street, to the tune of $479. Mrs. W. F. Edlin, of Lynnhurst avenue, and Mrs. A. E. Loeffler, of East Fifth street, had their purses taken in broad daylight. A dozen homes were burglarized in the Highlands, right in hearing of the Keystone Highland Police Station. Earl Schwab, of Barringer avenue, had his home robbed right after the grocery store proprietors of West Market street, lost $100 worth of jewelry in the drive. Patriotic burglars stole the Liberty bonds of George Hummel, of Greenwood avenue. Jesse James bandits held up the grocery store proprietors of patrons of Aaron Hanish, of 1227 South Eighteenth street. Mrs. H. Willett was blackjacked by a colored Republican at Sixth and Broadway. The store of R. A. Fife, at East Fifth and Third streets, was cleaned out by a gang of five. Leon Abraham, of First and Broadway, were rifled in the crusade of the crooks. James Collins, of Cincinnati, who came to the races, was touted into giving $24 and his watch to two negro holdup men.

Now this is not a complete list, but it leads us to believe that Chief Petty is on the wrong trail in giving Bible class lectures to regular church attendants and we offer him the following suggestion: Why not start Bible classes for the big army of crooks in our midst and see if he can't persuade them to see the error of their sinful and wicked ways. What a throng would be present if they all would respond. Gypsy Smith's revival records would be broken. We hope the Chief will try it, as it is a cinch our poor unsophisticated ex-motor-men and conductors are not going to remedy the situation. As police they are first-class Keystoneers, and real comedy artists to the crooks.

MACKIN COUNCIL, Y. M. I.

On Sunday morning, November 23, the members of Mackin Council will attend the 8 o'clock mass and approach holy communion in a body at St. Cecilia's church. All members of the council are urged to be present at St. Cecilia's church on the above date, as this is the annual memorial mass for the deceased members of Mackin Council. Mackin's membership team is still on the job and means to win the loving cup offered by the Grand Council of the Y. M. I. for the council obtaining the largest number of members on or before December 30, 1920.

The representative basketball team rounding into shape and it looks like a winner in the Catholic Young Men's Basketball League. The track team is also working hard for participation in the Thanksgiving cross-country race to be given by the Y. M. I. A. A. and we doubt give a good account of themselves on Turkey day. The race is to be held in Cherokee park on Thanksgiving morning at 9 o'clock and the public is invited to attend.

MINIMUM WAGE LAWS.

Minimum wage laws for women have long been sought by Catholic organizations and individuals. Rev. Edwin V. O'Hara was instrumental in obtaining a minimum wage law in Oregon. Dr. John A. Ryan has long advocated minimum wage laws and was active in the work in the District of Columbia. The Bishops' Program of Social Reconstruction issued shortly after the war said that "the several States should enact laws providing for the establishment of wage rates that will be adequate for the decent individual support of female workers."

AMERICAN CITIZEN'S STORY

Of the Reign of Terror, Murder and Crime in Ireland by Black and Tan Ruffians With Sanction of Lloyd George and English Government.

Tim Healy, International Labor Leader Just Returned and Gives Graphic Description of the Crimes and Scenes He Personally Witnessed.

TREATMENT OF WOMEN AND CHILDREN WORSE THAN BARBARIANS

(Timothy J. Healy, International President of the Brotherhood of Stevedores, Firemen and Fraternities, returned from the American Federation of Labor to the British Trades Union Congress, returned Sunday on the steamer Kaiserin Augusta Victoria. He brought back a graphic description of conditions in Ireland as he saw them. His original plan to land at Queenstown was upset by the British order preventing passenger vessels from calling at that port. He was forced to remain on the vessel until he reached Liverpool, where he took a steamer to Dublin. He got his first taste of militarism when he reached Limerick.)

(By Timothy Healy.)
My first visit to Ireland lasted twelve days, most of which time I stayed in Limerick and surrounding country. In Limerick I learned that during the week preceding August 15, which is a great Catholic holy day in Ireland, known as Ladies' day, there were services in all Catholic churches and prayers said for the well-being and saving of the country from destruction.

These services were concluded at 1 o'clock on August 15 and at 2 o'clock the police and "Black and Tans" visited the home of two young men who had been "on the run." ("On the run" means keeping out of sight of the police and military.) The father of these young men, being unable to give an account of the boys, keroseene was thrown over his house and a match put to it; his house and two others were burned to the ground. The fire department was called out, and as the house drawing the fire hose appeared on the street it was shot dead. The firemen, not relishing a similar fate, stayed in the fire house. As the houses were burning the "Black and Tans" raided the nearest liquor store and helped themselves to the contents. They then went along the streets shouting, yelling and cursing, and calling on the Sinn Feiners to come out and fight. That night they had to their credit the wrecking of over 100 houses. Carey's road, a street approximately a quarter of a mile long, all one-story houses, mostly the homes of the poorer class of working men, was wrecked. I went through that street two weeks later and there were only six houses in the street to my knowledge that were not wrecked.

From Limerick I went to New-castle West, where I saw the streets were shot up, doors and windows shattered, and several houses blown to atoms by bombs. I then returned to England and attended the Trades Union Congress, and met and talked with leading labor men of England, and with many public men, including ex-Prime Minister Asquith, and learned that the great masses of the people of England, Scotland and Wales knew little or nothing as to the true conditions of affairs in Ireland, as there are only three daily papers in the country that, up to that time, had published the facts of the destruction of life and property. The news was camouflaged so that it would appear that it was the Sinn Feiners who were doing the destruction. On my first arrival in Dublin I had been introduced by Mr. Fred DeMont, the American Consul, to Colonel Wilson, of the Intelligence Department of the Government. That afternoon I called on the General at Military Headquarters and discussed the Irish situation with the General and members of his staff, including Chief Inspector Smyth, of the Royal Irish Constabulary and a Major who previous to the war had served for twenty years with the British Army in India.

The discussion, at some points, was rather heated. At one point of the argument Inspector Smyth told me that the life of a policeman was worth the life of any four men in Ireland, and the gentleman from India stated that the only cure for Sinn Feinism was to take them out, line them up against a wall and shoot them.

The General was more guarded in his conversation, though he admitted that it was the duty of the police and military to shoot down everybody who was connected with what he termed "the murder gang." From Dublin I went to Balbriggan. The murders and destruction in that town are probably the worst that have occurred anywhere in Ireland during the past few years. Three or four truckloads of "Black and Tans" came into the city about 2 o'clock one afternoon. They took charge of a liquor store and drank and caroused for several hours, and as they got drunk they got out in the streets fighting among themselves and battered each other with bottles and glasses.

This was kept up until evening, when they shot Mr. Burke, their own Inspector, and also his brother, Sergeant Burke. Those of them who were the less intoxicated sought to put the blame of the murders on the Sinn Feiners. Of course it was impossible for the Sinn Feiners to do it, as the streets were full of "Black and Tans." However, the "Black and Tans" withdrew and went to Gormanstown, eight miles away, the training camp. They took charge of a liquor store and drank and caroused for several hours, and as they got drunk they got out in the streets fighting among themselves and battered each other with bottles and glasses.

I might here say that Gormanstown was the American aviation field in Ireland, and when the Americans withdrew they left the field, buildings and equipment to the British Government, who turned it into a training camp and school for the "Black and Tans" recruited in England. It is not known what numbers of them have been sent there, but according to a Scotland Yard report, 8,000 were recruited in the month of September last.

Those who went down to Balbriggan that evening reported that the Inspector and sergeant had been murdered by Sinn Feiners. The result was that 750 men, fully armed and with motor lorries, petrol, hand grenades and trench bombs, arrived in Balbriggan at midnight. Then hell broke loose in Balbriggan. Thirty-five of the principal houses and stores of the little town were blown to atoms, and the Balbriggan hosiery factory on the outskirts of the town was burned to the ground. This factory employed several hundred people, mostly girls.

The house of Mr. Gibbons, a young farmer, who resided with his widow and mother and three sisters, two of whom were invalided, was visited. Gibbons got out of bed and opened the door; then the visitors rushed upstairs. Gibbons asked permission to take an invalid sister, who was sitting at the top of the stairs, away. She had lost her crutches in the excitement.

One of the demons said, "We'll attend to her," then rushed her with his foot, threw her to the bottom of the stairs, where she was trampled upon. Gibbons was dragged across the street to the police station, where he was asked to tell all he knew about the Sinn Fein movement in the town. He denied knowing anything. He was prodded with bayonets and begged of his tormentors to be men; to put down their rifles, untie his hands, and that he would fight them three at a time.

Instead they battered his face with the butts of their rifles and finally struck him a heavy blow on the back of the head, which dazed him and put him out of his misery as far as pain was concerned. Some time later they dragged him to the street and round the corner about 100 yards away and put a bayonet through his body.

The body was left there until daylight. I was taken to the spot and saw the blood marks. About the same time that Gibbons was dragged out another gang went to the house of Mr. Lawless. Lawless rushed down in his bare feet to open the door and he was dragged into the street. He asked permission to go back and put on his shoes and the reply was, "You'll need no shoes by the time we are through with you." And they made good their word.

Lawless was tied by the arms to two "Black and Tans" and the process of making him confess was resorted to. His wife and eight children, and his mother, eighty-two years of age, were brought down to witness the performance. Two of his children were suffering from measles. The poor old mother had to witness the spectacle, and a ruffian standing by said, "Now, you old fellow, see your beautiful son! Why don't his Sinn Fein friends come out and rescue him?"

He too was taken to the station house and was put out of his misery about 4 o'clock in the morning by driving a bayonet through his throat and severing the windpipe. Mrs. Lawless, the widow, showered blessings on me for coming to see them. The word went around like wildfire that an American was making an investigation of the destruction, and the cry of the people who gathered round me was, "What is America doing? Is America going to help us? If we don't get help from America we are lost!" And in fact America was their hope in most places visited.

From Balbriggan I went to Drogheda by way of Gormanstown, and found for miles round the people were terror stricken. I visited the counties of Tipperary, Cork, Limerick, Galway, Clare and Kerry. The towns in Tipperary which got the worst wrecking were Menagh, Tipperary and Templemore. The "Black and Tans" arrived on motor trucks in Templemore about 11 o'clock at night and, as usual, first attacked a liquor store. A barrel of whisky was rolled into the street, the head knocked in and the "boys" drank their fill. Then the yell was raised, "Up and at them, Black and Tans."

Within one hour the main street of the city was wrecked from end to end. Mr. Kiely's dry goods store, one of the best equipped in Ireland of its kind, was destroyed. Wreckers were dressed in women's wearing apparel and danced in the street to the music of a guitar. They visited a house where a woman had been waked; marched round the coffin playing the guitar and singing.

Many towns in the county of Cork have been wrecked, the worst damage having been done at Mallow, Bandon, Fermoy and Cork city. When Queenstown was attacked the British Admiral put marines ashore, threatening the wreckers that if they did not desist from destruction he would turn his guns on them. The Admiral undoubtedly saved Queenstown from destruction.

On the evening of November 1, about 5 o'clock, Mrs. Ellen Quinn, twenty-three years of age, wife of a farmer living in Gorth, County Galway, sitting at the front of her house playing with her baby, nine months old, was shot from a military motor truck passing along the road. She was the mother of three children, and again about to become a mother.

Which she called out that she was shot, a young man started to run across the fields for a doctor and he was shot from another military motor truck and badly wounded. When the doctor arrived, nearly four hours after the woman had almost died to death.

In Clare, among the towns badly wrecked were Ennistimon, Lehnich and Milltown Malbay. In Ennistimon a man's house had been set on fire and as the man came out he was shot dead, after being questioned by the "Black and Tans." They picked up the body and threw it into the flames, where it was burned to a crisp.

The following figures speak for themselves: In the first nine months of 1920 the Government made 4,000 arrests and raided, and in some cases looted and destroyed, over 24,000 houses, while eighty-nine towns had been sacked and upward of one hundred creameries and other industrial plants destroyed.

That is what brought about the assassination of policemen and soldiers. Where is the man who is going to stand up and see his home destroyed or see his father or brother assassinated if he has a weapon to defend them with.

Mrs. O'Dwyer, whose two sons had been pulled out of bed and assassinated by the military, was standing with her blind husband by the bodies of the boys when the newspapermen arrived, and her comment was: "Thank God! They died for their country!"

From the above it can be seen that Ireland is a deplorable condition, and it is liable to be worse. The Government, being unable to break the national spirit, has now resorted to the shutting down of the railroads, so as to starve the people into submission.

If the United States and other civilized peoples do not call a halt on Lloyd George and his present Cabinet, Ireland, I fear, is doomed to destruction.

ENGLISH

Writer's Diary Tells Story of Present Situation in Ireland.

Miseries and Sufferings of Women and Children Truly Depicted.

Black and Tan Ruffians Given Free License to Murder and Pillage.

SOME UNBIASED TESTIMONY.

The English Terrorism which overshadows the daily life of the Irish people even in "a quiet part of Ireland" is strikingly shown by the diary of "a distinguished writer and Irish landlord," republished in this country by the Friends of Irish Freedom National Bureau of Information. This matter-of-fact record of a week's events in a small Irish community as originally published in the Nation of London, is as follows: September 28.—Yesterday, Monday, evening I came home, driving from the sea. I had been told that a house in K— had been burned in the night, the Sunday night, and we passed by its ruined walls. But that is a common sight in towns now, and there seems to be some doubt who burned this.

A little farther, at the cross roads, there was another ruin, M—'s, the smith's. His house had also been burned down in the night, "by military and police," he and his family had found shelter in the cart shed. It seemed so silent; we had always heard the hammer of the smithy as we passed and seen the glow of the fire. And he was such a good hunter used to be sent to him. "One of his sons was said to be secretary to a Sinn Fein Committee."

Today M. L. came to ask for sand for the building up of B—'s house at B—, burned also on the Sunday night by military and police. They had come to look for one of the sons and he was not there. Then they told B— to take what money he had out of the house, and had set fire to it. There were children in the house. M— has taken two of them to his. They say G— would have been burned on Saturday by drunken soldiers arriving from E—, but three of the old police restrained them.

September 30.—I was quite ill, could not eat or sleep, after that unbecoming, the desolation of that burned town. I saw one house, E. M.'s beautiful little village hall burned down.

G— coming to work at the winery from G—, says that on Monday night two lorries of military came into the town firing and shooting, and the people brought out their furniture from their houses, expecting the burnings to begin. "Black-and-Tans and police and military burned B—'s house, an officer with them, but there e'er a gentleman among them."

October 1.—B. No post today. Old Patrick F— working for me says: "There did two car loads of the Black-and-Tans come into G— yesterday evening. They were a holy fright—shooting and firing. They broke into houses and searched them, and they searched the people in the street, women and girls that were coming out from the chapel, and that came running down our streets, their life. Then they went into S— to drink, and got drunk there—it is terrible to let them do that. Look at I—, they burned all the bedding in the house and every bit of money he had was being chased, then they came down, and girls nearly came away. It is a holy crime; it is worse than Belgium. What call have they coming to G—, that is such a quiet little town? What of your own workmen that went into G— in the evening with their messes, from the town that is sick was stopped near the town and made put up his hands and was searched."

M— has just brought me back a book, "The Swann," that I had sent to go back to the "Swann" house, a regiment of soldiers with their bayonets standing at the post office door, and no one could go in, and the shuts up as on Sundays. They were said to be searching the letters inside. Old — is trembling, "there is no one is safe!"

October 2.—No letters yet. J— says the military opened all the letters that came in yesterday, that time they were at the post office. The Black-and-Tans left last night. "They searched every house, and found nothing, but any pictures they saw that had anything to do with Sinn Fein they tore and broke them. Young H— was trying to slip away from them, but they fired and hit him in the thigh. They went into the cross, the Irishmen, come into the parlor, and 'Who fears to speak of Easter Week?' There were not three people in G— went to bed ere last night, but sitting up the night time keeping the lights burning. Y—, that was a policeman's son from the neighborhood, was the officer over the Black-and-Tans, a tall young fellow. He was wearing a white cloth over his face, and holes cut in it for the eyes. The next day he searched twice, where X— lives that killed V—'s father last year with a blow of a hurl, but that was acquitted, but for manslaughter. They are thinking he wants his revenge. But S— says it would have been worse but for V— being in it. He has friends he would not wish to harm in the town."

"The reason for B—'s house being burned was that he had driven cattle on Lord —'s property at D—, and the police say they heard shots there one night. There are others living near that say there were no shots fired. It was 1 o'clock in the night time they burned the house and the wheat and the oats—a slated house and as well furnished as any house you could see. The boy they were looking for was in it, and they covered him with their revolvers, eight of them, holding them to his head and his body, but the officer said, 'We can do enough harm without killing him,' and they began the burning."

J. M— says the Black-and-Tans fired thirty shots at H—, but only one hit, in the shoulder; and that they broke all the pictures and furniture in B—'s shop.

Old P— says: "They stole a piece of tweed from J—'s shop, and a gold necklace and watch from a house on Church street. Y—, their officer, made them put back the tweed, but the watch and the necklace they brought away. They drank in every bar, and went about drunk in the evening, shouting and singing. Saved they were—a holy terror!"

October 5.—Our censored letters have come one from across the marked, words obliterated with blue pencil.

REPUDIATE FRENCH MASONS.

Discussing the recent action of the Grand Lodge of Masons, the Indiana Catholic and Record says:

"The Grand Lodge of Masons and Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of America, reaffirmed the other day in Kansas City its refusal to recognize the Grand Lodge of France and the Grand Orient, their actions being based on the alleged atheistic tendencies of the French orders.

"Here is a concrete example of one Masonic Lodge of one nation refusing to recognize a Masonic Lodge of another nation because the latter is atheistic. Now if the Masons themselves refuse to affiliate with other Masons on account of atheistic tendencies can they blame the Catholic Church for denying recognition to Masonry and prohibiting its members joining its ranks on account of its atheism and antagonism?

"The trouble between the Church and Masonry began in Italy when the Grand Orient came into control and ruled out all reference to Christ in its proceedings, especially in the prayers for deceased brethren.

"While there had been some friction before that time there was no general denunciation by Papal Bull until 1827-28. The Church that never will and never can compromise with those who deny Christ, promptly said to all her children, 'Outside,' and many eminent Catholics, like the great Daniel O'Connell himself, left the Masonic order.

"The Church in her action stood on the words of the Scripture: 'He who denies Me before men I will deny him before My Father who is in heaven.'

"Many excellent non-Catholic Americans are members of the Masonic order. It is pleasing to see most of the Grand Lodges in this country repudiating the atheistic Grand Orient. A complete knowledge of its atheistic workings was revealed to all American Masons who were in Europe during the great war. We published one bitter denunciation from an American Army Captain, a Mason of high standing. He was 'astonished to find,' he said, 'that the Masons in France did not even believe in God and openly admitted it.'

"The turn things have now taken in reference to Masonry show how well justified was the action of the Church at the time she took it."

WOMEN INTERESTED.

The returns from the recent elections show that the women participated in large numbers in every State of the Union, and although the first time in many places, the suffragettes took to voting like the proverbial duck takes to water. The woman in politics marks a new era in this country and the women who will come forward to leadership will not be the pioneers in the suffragette movement. Many of the women first interested were only so because of a fad, and had no real heart in their work. The new leaders will come from the ranks of the store girls, the business women and those who were the power in their respective homes.

TRIBUTE TO CATHOLICS.

Victor Berger, the Socialist, who was refused his seat in Congress two years ago after being elected by the voters of Milwaukee, was beaten in the recent election, and in a statement charges his defeat to the Catholic vote. If the defeat of this un-American can be attributed to the Catholic vote then it is a deserved tribute to the voters of that faith.

HARD TIMES AT HAND.

The industrial depression at hand will again emphasize the distinction between the worker who saved and the one who spent his all. One put aside something of the big prosperity wages for the rainy days while the other squandered his in silk shirts, automobiles and other luxuries. The saver is content to meet the crisis while the spender is flustered with fear.

HYPOCRITICAL GEORGE.

The course of events in Ireland with murder and arson as the chief pastime of British troops exposes Lloyd George as the most monumental hypocrite in modern history. At the beginning of his reign as Prime Minister he promised a fair settlement of the Irish question and then professed himself as being heartbroken over the sufferings of Belgium during the war. Today this same sniveling hypocrite is ordering the wholesale murders of men, women and children in Ireland, and is bent on the extermination of a people whose sole crime is that they are striving for liberty and freedom.

JUST PUNISHMENT.

Emma Goldman writes from Petrograd, Russia, that she and her fellow Socialists and anarchists are not being treated well by the Soviet government, and that they are suffering for the necessities of life, which they had and enjoyed in this country. One strange request she makes is for soap, as we always thought that bomb throwers and anarchists were not very keen for cleanliness.

Thanksgiving day is a day of thanks for some because it means the end of the football season and the rah rah boys.

Our idea of a game or foolhardy candidate is one who would want to run on a League of Nations platform after the recent landslide.

BLAKELY LECTURE.

In order to accommodate the large attendance expected at the lecture by Paul L. Blakely, Ph. D., on the Smith-Towner bill, for tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, which was announced in our last week's issue as to be given at the Knights of Columbus Hall, will be given instead at the Seelbach Hotel auditorium, tenth floor, which has a much larger seating capacity. Dr. Blakely is a lecturer of national reputation. His subject is a timely one, as the Smith-Towner bill is now pending in the Senate. He should be heard by all citizens who are in any way interested in our schools, whether parents, teachers or tax payers. There will be no charge whatever. All are cordially invited. Ladies are especially welcome. Attendance at this lecture will help one to become acquainted with this important bill and to discuss it with interest and intelligence. The change from the K. of C. Hall to the Seelbach auditorium was made in the last day or two, and it is hoped that the change will be noted.

COMING EVENTS.

SOLDIERS FORGOTTEN.

A warning to Americans that the war is being too easily forgotten was sounded by William J. McGinley, Supreme Secretary of the Knights of Columbus, on his return to New York after an inspection tour of K. of C. welfare activities throughout the West.

"There are indications everywhere that we have been too ready to take it for granted that normal peace conditions would return without our going to work to meet them half way," he said. "Thousands of men who saw service during the war have not yet renewed their civilian life with security or comfort. They need help just as much now that they are in the thick of the battle for a livelihood as they did when they were in the trenches winning the war."

"The Knights of Columbus employment bureau, located in strategic points throughout the country, enable us to know something of the real economic conditions of the United States. While it is nothing to be pessimistic about, it is not encouraging. It is becoming more and more difficult to place service men, even those with distinguished records, in worth while jobs. We have decided to increase as much as possible the scope of the Knights of Columbus technical and business schools."

FOCH CONDEMN'S SHIMMY.

Marshal Foch stopped a shimmy, perhaps unwittingly, in the dance hall of the Hotel Ritz in Paris. He had been a guest at dinner of Ignace and Mrs. Paderewski, with Gen. Weygand and others. After dinner the party walked over to the dance hall where a shimmy was in full tremor. The old Marshal knit his brows over the antics of the women in the dance, although he tried to act as if he liked them. As the frown gathered Mr. Paderewski smilingly explained to the Marshal that the shimmy was an American product.

"Ah, I saw much more wonderful American products than that at St. Michel and Chateau-Thierry," was the quick rejoinder.

The Marshal's words were flashed across the dancing hall, and there was no more shimmying that evening.

HEAR MACSWINEY'S WIDOW.

Mrs. Muriel MacSwiney, widow of the Lord Mayor of Cork, who died in Brixton prison in his hunger strike, will start for the United States November 24. She will sail on the Celtic, said a cable message received from her by the Committee of One Hundred.

Mrs. MacSwiney will testify before the committee, which is making an impartial investigation of the conditions prevailing in Ireland. The first hearing before the committee will be held next Wednesday. It is expected that former Governor Folk, of Missouri, will preside. The Rev. James H. Coffer, of Ironton, Ohio, who recently returned from Ireland, will be the first witness. James C. Fogarty, a law student of Fordham University, New York City, who recently spent three months with his mother in Ireland, and the Rev. Father English, of Whitehall, Mont., also will testify on the opening day, it is expected. Thereafter sessions will be held twice daily. Witnesses have been promised immunity from reprisals by either side, British or Irish.

EXPLAINED.

An argument as to the origin of bagpipes had waxed loud and long between a Scotsman and an Irishman, each of whom claimed that his own country had produced the instrument.

Finally the Irishman clinched matters by remarking: "Well, the truth is the Irish invented the pipes and they made a present of them to the Scots. And the Scots haven't seen the joke yet!"

This company has always been directed by capitalists and business men of known ability and judgment; its real estate department is in touch with the latest developments in property values, and has proved of inestimable benefit to buyers and sellers of houses and lands. No company in greater Louisville stands higher than this, and throughout the trying time of the world war and the reconstruction period that followed it has maintained its financial solidity and largely increased the scope of its activities. If you desire to have your estate administered by experts, your property purchased or sold, a suitable investment for your money, anything in their wide field of business, you can not do better than confide your affairs to this up-to-date and financially armored old institution.

RED CROSS APPEAL.

The fourth roll call of the American Red Cross is on. It began Armistice day and will continue through Thanksgiving day, November 25. In the national enrollment 10,500,000 members are sought while in Lake Division—Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky—a membership of 1,500 is the goal. In order to carry out its vast peace program, which embraces tasks of great magnitude both at home and in foreign lands, the Red Cross needs the united support of the American people. Europe is looking to the Red Cross for relief during the coming winter, when cold and hunger will menace thousands, particularly in the impoverished countries of the East. Hundreds of thousands of children in Eastern Europe are dependent upon outside relief and great numbers will die during the winter unless assistance in some measure is extended.

Just as the roll call opens word comes of the death in South Russia of Capt. Emmett Kilpatrick, of the Red Cross, at the hands of the Bolsheviks during a cavalry raid. This illustrates, in a striking way, the self-sacrificing service the Red Cross is performing and how its workers are laying down their lives in the line of duty. Maintenance of the disaster relief service, to which many in Lake Division owe debts of gratitude; development of the public health nursing service and health centers and extension of home service work are some of the tasks faced at home. To what extent the Red Cross will be able to meet the pressing needs in this country depends upon the response of the American people in the roll call. The message of the Red Cross was delivered to thousands of church-goers on Red Cross Sunday, November 14. Prominent speakers from National Headquarters of the Red Cross and members of the staff of Lake Division joined with ministers in urging the people to join the Red Cross or renew their membership during the roll call.

SHAME OF FRANCE.

Miss Beveridge, American novelist, now engaged in relief efforts for the starving children of parts of Germany, and lately traveling through the Palatinate, treats of the crimes committed by the African troops occupying German territory under the heading, "The Shame of France." She asserts that the outrages committed daily by the troops of occupation are far more grievous than those alleged to have been committed by Germans in Belgium in the early days of the war, which were so effectively made use of to rouse a world of opposition against Germany. Miss Beveridge appeals to all neutrals and "to the women in the Entente countries to use their influence to save white women from terror, brutality and demoralization."

Viewing the situation from a different angle M. Finot, writing in the Review named, discovers in the employment of African blacks by his country in Germany a "menace to the honor and future of France." He points to the danger threatening his country, as arising from the many protests voiced against the "black disgrace on the Rhine." M. Finot thinks it a mistake not to have seriously considered the feelings of the population of the occupied territory in advance, and to have sent there troops made up of men recruited among African tribes of whom one would necessarily have to expect certain excesses. While he thinks the charges raised by the Germans are exaggerated, he admits that the protests coming from people residing in neutral and allied countries are all the more deserving of consideration. He notes, for instance, that important Swedish papers are now writing of France in a style employed against Germany during the war, while papers appearing in Anglo-Saxon countries are making much of the cases of criminal attack on women and young girls.

M. Finot urges that the best interests of France demand quick and effective action in order to silence the charges. There are two methods of procedure, he suggests; the one would be to appoint an international committee to investigate and to make recommendations; but that being out of the question, as too slow a procedure, he recommends that the troops in question be withdrawn immediately and replaced by troops from the capital, stating that an army of occupation should always be composed of picked men.

ST. ANN'S SOCIAL.

The young ladies of St. Ann's church extend an invitation to their friends to be their guests on Thanksgiving afternoon and evening at a social to be given in the school hall. This is the first social entertainment given by the ladies of St. Ann's since the arrival of Rev. Father Doherty, the new pastor and they are urging their friends to come and aid them in making it a success. Take Sixth streets cars to the hall, Seventh and Davies avenue.

A TIMELY SUBJECT.

Dr. Paul L. Blakely, Ph. D., associate editor of America, will lecture at the K. of C. Hall tomorrow evening, his subject being the Smith-Towner bill, and the public at large is extended an invitation to attend. This measure is now pending in the Senate and aims to give control of all our schools, including private and parochial, to the Federal Government.

THANKSGIVING TURKEYS.

The Committee of Arrangements for the social affair to be given by St. Louis Bertrand's church, held an, building fund have imported a big supply of Thanksgiving turkeys to be disposed of in Bertrand Hall next Tuesday afternoon and evening.

GODD WOMAN GONE.

The funeral of Mrs. David Fahy took place from the family residence, 29 West Oak street, Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock and from St. Louis Bertrand's church at 9. Although ill for some time, her death was entirely unexpected and came as a severe shock to her many friends. Mrs. Fahy was a woman of many fine qualities and a leader in charitable work within field all her own. Mrs. Fahy was many friends and admirers who sincerely mourn her death.

"Step Lively, Please"

Has it ever occurred to you that this familiar request by the conductor suggest one way you can better your street car service?

Delays at stops add to the trip-time and disarrange schedules.

Disarranged schedules mean irregular service. Understand, please, that the conductor doesn't ask you to hurry, H-U-R-R-Y never spells speed.

But we do ask you, for the good of the service, to be alert. Be ready to get on or off when the car stops. Have your fare ready.

If you wait until the car stops and the gates are opened before leaving the sidewalk, you add to the stop-time.

If you wait until the car stops before leaving your seat, you cause a delay for yourself and others.

Your alertness is a big aid in keeping your transportation system in high gear.

Your co-operation in these little things will help us in maintaining efficient service.

Please work with us.

ONLY ONE ALLIANCE.
We read or hear little about the necessity of French-American, Italian-American, Belgian-American, or any other international friendship.
We seldom hear of schemes, ideas, speakers, officers or papers pleading for alliances and brotherly relations between America and other countries. But no matter where you are, where you go, or where you turn, you hear and see the organized, subsidized and oily British agencies trying to get in their poisonous work. Why? Well, to put it baldly, the imperialistic gang who were driven out of this country in 1776 desire to reconquer it by the force of propaganda and once more make it an annex for His Majesty and for the Jewish financiers, who they work hand-in-hand with.

TRIALS OF AN INSPECTOR.
The sanitary inspector knocked sharply at the door and it soon opened.
"How many people live here?" he began, according to the Houston Post.
"Nobody lives here," answered the daughter of the house; "we're only staying for a short time."
"But how many are here?"
"I'm here. Father's gone for a walk and mother is—"
"Stop, stop!" exclaimed the man impatiently. "I want to know how many inmates are in this house.
How many people slept here last night?"
"Well, you see," was the reply.
"I had the toothache dreadful and my little brother had the stomach ache and we all took on so much that nobody slept a wink."
Then the inspector said he would call again.

METHODIST

Hide Propaganda Movement Behind Memorial Building in France.

Representative Begins Proselyting Among the French Boys and Girls.

Catholic Church Clergy and Laymen Say Efforts Will Be Wasted.

FALLEN CATHOLICS SOCIALISTS.

Under the guise of a memorial to the sacred dead of America and the sacred dead of France and on a spot hallowed by the blood of the men of the two great Republics, American Methodists have opened headquarters for the missionary work which they are planning to do in France. The story is told in an article appearing in the Paris Edition of the New York Herald, October 10.

"Americans who have recently passed through Chateau-Thierry have noticed with some surprise and wonder in the Place des Etats Unis, within a stone's throw of the famous bridge over the Marne that was destroyed by the Americans in 1918 when they stopped the German onrush, a rather imposing structure over whose entrance flies a large American flag. Purchased by the American Methodist Committee in France, when the French Government asked it to help in the relief work in the devastated area, the building which was once the old shell-torn Hotel de l'Elephant, has now been transformed by the committee into a memorial for the American soldiers who fell in the war.

"Work has been going on since last May under the supervision of Dr. Ernest W. Bysse and F. E. Baker and now the remains of the hotel have been transformed into the present handsome building. Over the entrance, in golden letters, is the simple inscription, 'Methodist Memorial.'

Then follows a description of the building and of the war relics gathered there. Continuing the article referred to states:

Real Object of Memorial.
"The real object of this building, however, is to make it the center of all work to be done by the Methodist Committee in France. Thirty-two villages have been assigned to this welfare organization, of which Dr. Julian S. Wadsworth is the local director. Dr. Edgar Blake, the religious head; Dr. Ernest W. Bysse, the superintendent, and F. E. Baker, treasurer. During the latter part of last year Dr. Wadsworth had associated with him fifteen social service workers whom he recruited largely from the Y. M. C. A. Work has since been carried on in the districts assigned for the benefit of returning refugees, and tons of material have been distributed to these people while entertainment of all kinds has been provided.

"It was determined by the committee to concentrate this work of social aid in Chateau-Thierry, thus making the building a permanent and fitting memorial to the Americans who fell in the vicinity. A programme of work has been evolved with the advice of the leading physician of the community, Dr. Prieur. In the programme as drawn up so far, a feature has been made of assistance to mothers and babies. A graduate nurse from the American Hospital at Bordeaux will visit the homes of expectant mothers, and a baby clinic has been established in the building as well as a day nursery with provision for twenty-five babies from six months to four years of age. Two French women, Mrs. Duvalier and Gabriel, are in charge.

"Work for the older boys and girls, including classes in gymnastics, piano and the English language has also been organized. Miss Ranson is in charge of the girls' classes, while Mr. Williams, who has had much experience in Boy Scout work in America, has been secured for the boys' classes. The classes also include courses in sewing for girls and industrial work for boys. Work on similar lines to that in Chateau-Thierry will be organized at Escom-sur-Marne, Brailles and Mont Saint Pere, all in the Aisne Department.

Catholic churchmen and Catholic lay men may say this cannot affect Catholicism in France. Why should it not? What reason is there to believe it will not? Consider the case—a people who have been sorely tried, women, children, young men and young girls. Comes to them in their misery a strange people helping them, teaching them in the things that make for better living and advancement and making them realize that there is still hope, doing for them that which their own has not. But they don't aid them spiritually, it will be said. No, but it is not spiritual aid the people of devastated France wish today, but practical assistance. Outsiders are giving it to them. "But they don't get our people," the narrow Catholics say. "Why should we worry?" No, they may not get them into their churches but they do get them away from all religion and that is something gained by the opponents of Catholicism.

MIGHTY LIBERAL.

Commonwealth's Attorney Joe Huffaker and his assistant, Lorraine Mix, recently secured conviction in the case of a negro criminal who had been arrested numerous times. The verdict of two years was announced to him by Judge Harry Robinson, and he was asked if he had anything to say. "Jesse," said the prisoner: "You is mighty lib' wit another man's time."

RECENT DEATHS.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary A. Hall, wife of O. C. Hall, took place from St. Louis Bertrand's church Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock. Deceased was forty-four years of age and died at St. Anthony's Hospital Monday morning.

Herman Vonderheide, one of our leading and respected German Catholic citizens, died Tuesday night after a short illness. He was seventy-five years of age and besides his wife, Mrs. Catherine Vonderheide, is survived by three daughters, Misses Elizabeth, Emma and Mrs. Frank Koehler, and three sons, Joseph, Henry and George Vonderheide. The funeral took place from St. George's church Thursday morning at 9 o'clock.

Mr. James Canty, beloved husband of Margaret Canty (nee Keese) and a most estimable member of St. Columba's church, passed peacefully away Friday, November 12, after an illness of five weeks. There was a large congregation of sorrowing friends present at the funeral services at St. Columba's church on Monday, when a requiem high mass was celebrated for the repose of his soul. The Rev. Father Kalaher in a feeling and eloquent tribute to the deceased declared that his benefactions were boundless and that he had always been a devoted and loving son of Mother Church. Besides his widow he leaves three daughters, Mrs. P. L. Mallon, Misses Mabel and Fanile Canty; one son, Raymond Canty, and one granddaughter, Sherrill Mallon. To the bereaved family is extended the sincere condolence of a wide circle of friends and relatives. Rev. Father Kalaher pronounced the absolution at the grave.

CIVIC CLUB PLATFORM.

The Portland Civic Club, which took an active part in defeat of the University of Louisville Bond Issue, has now adopted a platform recommending two additional girls' high schools, higher salaries for teachers and also the following resolution, which is aimed at the Tories and pro-English in this country who have been trying to promote an English-American Alliance: "We have such an abiding reverence for George Washington and his followers, rank and file, that we would view any tampering with their acts, or with the history of the Revolutionary War so dear to every true American, as a sacrilege. We can not agree with the suggestions occasionally made of rewriting our revolutionary history, and we are unwilling that our country shall be made the fall of some foreign countries' kite."

The officers of the club are Thomas McShane and C. Joseph Friedel, Secretary.

Rev. Charles A. Hasley, pastor of St. Jerome's church, Fancy Farm, Ky., has been appointed chaplain of St. Joseph's Infirmary, this city, and has assumed his new duties. Rev. The ladies of the parish will serve a good old-fashioned country supper from 5 to 8 o'clock. Take Eighteenth street cars to the grounds.

IMPRESSIVE SCENE.

As the death knell was being tolled on the hanging of young Kevin Barry in Mountjoy Prison, Dublin, over a thousand members of the Daughters of Erin knelt in the street outside the prison and recited the Rosary in Irish for the repose of the soul of the victim. Kevin Barry was a nineteen-year-old lad and was convicted by the British for the slaying of three soldiers in Dublin.

The men do all the honors, perform all the manual labors, have general charge and the ladies enjoy seeing the men filling their usual duties.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Alec Staebler, fifty-two years old, one of the best known road contractors in the country, died of a heart disease Thursday morning in the Illinois Central yardmaster's office at Fourteenth and Oak streets, where he was taken off a train, on which he was stricken ill.

For twenty-five years Mr. Staebler had been in the road contracting business. He built the Shelbyville pike and had rebuilt nearly all the roads in the First Magisterial district in the last twenty years. Mr. Staebler had been more or less active in politics, but had never held office.

Funeral services will be held at 9 o'clock this morning at Holy Trinity church, St. Matthews, and burial will be in St. Louis cemetery, Louisville.

HE SPOKE TOO FAST.

No doubt the doctor spoke rashly. An inquisitive niece, seeing him return from the funeral of a wealthy patient, innocently inquired: "Uncle Tom, do you attend the funerals of all your patients who die?"

"Good heavens, no," said the doctor. "Do you think I have nothing to do but go to funerals?"

ITALY CONDEMNED.

The reign of terror in Ireland has attracted official attention in Italy, and Deputy Mauri, a leader of the Italian Congress, says: "Italy can not remain indifferent to the desperate cry of martyred Ireland. The time has come for Italy to know and realize the cruelties of the English troops serving as police and their systemic work of destruction."
